‘STILL REQUIRES IMPROVEMENT’

But Ofsted inspectors also praise areas of children's services

HARINGEY Council's children's services department is making progress but still "requires improvement"

That is the verdict of an Ofsted inspection, published on Friday, which ruled that the authority's previously under-fire children's social care unit is improving.

The single inspection of "services for children in need of help and protection, children looked after and care leavers" as well as a "review of the effectiveness of the local safeguarding children board" took place between May 18 and June 11.

Giving an overall rating of "requires improvement", the government inspectorate said: "There are no widespread or serious failures that create or leave children being harmed or at risk of harm."

"The welfare of looked-after children is safeguarded and promoted. However, the authority is not yet delivering good protection and help and care for children, young people and families."

"It is Ofsted's expectation that, as a minimum, all children and young people receive good help, care and protection."

Citing reasons why the authority was given "requires improvement" across the board, the report said that "Haringey does not yet have a comprehensive and co-ordinated early help offer that meets the needs of children, young people and their families". And it added: "The number of families receiving early help via the common assessment framework has remained low for the last three years."

While noting that Haringey's children's social care team had "significantly improved the number of initial child protection conferences held within 15 working days of the decision to undertake a child protection investigation", Ofsted said that some children were still not "receiving coordinated help and support via a child protection plan as quickly as they should".

It noted that some youngsters referred to children's social care services following concerns of chronic neglect "may not always receive timely or thorough assessments". As a result, this has led to delays in dealing with their needs.

The report also raised concerns about training and support for foster carers, said there was "insufficient understanding of the impact of risky behaviour in assessments and plans for older looked-after children" and noted that the average 39 weeks taken to place youngsters with an adoptive family was much higher than the recommended 26 weeks.

It added that "some care leavers are not aware of their entitlements to financial support, or how to access the leaving care grant" and that the proportion of care leavers in education, training or work had fallen from 63 per cent in March 2013 to 47 per cent a year later.

However, the report flagged up a number of positives, with inspectors impressed by the quality of assessments and casework at Haringey and the commitment of front-line staff, whom they described as "motivated and positive about working in Haringey". Inspectors also said they were satisfied that the council's new senior leadership team was leading improvements and had clear priorities for driving children's services forward.

Ann Waters, Haringey's cabinet member for children, said: "We're pleased that the inspectors highlighted a number of examples of good practice at Haringey and that their report recognises many of the improvements already made in our children's services."

"In particular we welcome the inspectors' findings that we are making progress in our delivery of children's services and are clear about our priorities, that most of our casework is of good quality and that the voice of the child clearly runs through most of our work."

"I'm grateful to all of the staff in children's services who have worked so hard to deliver improvements that will make a real difference to the lives of children in Haringey."

Shock after sudden death of councillor

TRIBUTES have been paid to councillor Pat Egan, who died on Saturday.

Woodside Labour member Mr Egan, 66, who was married with grown-up children and grandchildren, passed away suddenly.

The Wood Green resident, right, was re-elected for a third term in May.

The committed Catholic and former university lecturer was chairman of governors at St Thomas More School, in Glendale Avenue, Wood Green.

Following Mr Egan's death, the school's executive headteacher Martin Tissot paid tribute to his "devoted service".

Mr Tissot said: "We are all very upset by his untimely death at a comparatively young age. He was respected by all for his counsel and wisdom."

"We are indebted to him for his devoted service to St Thomas More School and, of course, he was a driving force behind our recent school improvement."

"He was motivated by his passion to see greater opportunities for ordinary men and women and greater equality in society."

"We send heartfelt condolences to his widow and family. May he rest in peace."

Tottenham Labour MP David Lammy also expressed his condolences to "the family and friends of Pat Egan, a hugely respected councillor in Wood Green and thoroughly decent man".

Alan Stanton, a councillor from 1998 until this year, said: "In my experience of Pat Egan as a colleague, I always found him to be a man of principle, integrity, honesty and endless courtesy."

Tottenham Conservatives leader Justin Hinchcliffe tweeted: "Thoughts and prayers to the family and friends of Pat Egan. May he rest in peace."

Going green can help growth and create jobs, businesses told

BUSINESSES are being encouraged to get involved in a new project which will boost profits and increase the use of green energy supplies.

Enfield Council is leading the Retrofit London scheme, which will support small and medium-sized enterprises to gain access to energy-saving and carbon-reduction markets, secure industry-standard accreditations and acquire government funding.

The project is being funded by the Greater London Authority, the European Regional Development Fund, Enfield, Haringey, Waltham Forest and Lewisham councils, Enterprise Enfield and the North London Chamber of Commerce.

A launch day yesterday at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, was attended by firms from the property management and construction sectors, as well as manufacturers and distributors of energy-saving products.

Alan Sitkin, cabinet member for economic development, said "Enfield Council is committed to supporting local businesses and we want to do all we can to help them tap into the energy-saving markets. This sector is recognised as a key area for future growth and job creation and we want to make sure our businesses can access these new opportunities.

"We are looking for small to medium-sized enterprises in the construction, engineering and property management sectors, but basically, if you feel your company has the potential to supply the Retrofit London agenda, we want to hear from you."

To find out about Retrofit London and register your interest in getting support, call Enterprise Enfield on 020 8443 5457.

Landlord starts legal fight over £500 licence scheme

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A LANDLORD has launched a legal challenge against the council's borough-wide compulsory licensing scheme.

Constantinos Regas began proceedings in the Administrative Court two weeks ago for a judicial review of the decision by Enfield Council's cabinet to introduce the scheme for all private landlords.

Under the plans, known as additional and selective licensing, private landlords will have to obtain a £500 five-year licence from the council for every property they own.

In order to secure a licence, landlords have to ensure that sufficient health and safety measures are in place, as well as procedures to deal with antisocial behaviour and environmental crime.

The council believes that drawing up a landlords' register will also tackle poor standards of housing, overcrowding and missed rubbish collections.

The rationale was previously challenged by a group of landlords who made deputations to the cabinet after their petition opposing the plans gathered 1,860 signatures – but the scheme was approved in April and the decision was affirmed later that month by the council's overview and scrutiny committee.

Mr Regas, who rents out one property, said: "Like anyone applying for a judicial review, I am taking legal action as a last resort. My concerns have been ignored and the council has been uncooperative in providing information.

"My sole purpose is to ask the Administrative Court to scrutinise the council to make sure that it is not abusing its powers."

The landlord is seeking to challenge the evidence on which the cabinet decision was taken, the legitimacy of the consultation process and the terms and conditions on which licences will be issued, which he describes as unreasonable.

Mr Regas added: "I have repeatedly stated at council meetings that I consider good housing conditions to be a human right – but the idea that a majority of tenants are neighbours from hell or that most landlords are greedy people who rent out 'beds in sheds' is not supported by any data."

The council has vowed to "vigorously defend" the scheme. A spokeswoman said: "The scheme has been introduced to reduce antisocial behaviour in the borough and the council is vigorously defending the judicial review. It would be prejudicial to disclose the details of the council's defence at this stage."

The first step in the proceedings is for Mr Regas to show that he has a good case and a sufficient interest in the matter. If the court agrees, a judicial review will follow.

'The existing Chase Farm site is not fit for purpose'

NHS trust boss says a case for redevelopment will go before the board next week – but public will have to wait months to find about proposals

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

PATIENTS and residents will have to wait until November to see the first details of what the new Chase Farm Hospital is going to look like.

But what is becoming clear is that the Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust, which took over the running of the hospital in The Ridgeway, Enfield, and Barnet Hospital, earlier this month, is planning major changes.

They include knocking down Chase Farm's iconic clock tower and surrounding buildings and almost completely rebuilding facilities across a smaller site.

Speaking after a meeting with councillors, health commissioners and MPs on Monday, the trust's chief executive David Sloman told the Advertiser that a strategic outline case for the redevelopment of Chase Farm will be put before the trust board next week – but admitted that this document would not be made public.

"We are still working through the scale and scope of the development," he said.

"The existing Chase Farm site is not fit for purpose, with buildings far apart and with many in a bad state of repair, and there are five 35-year-old oil boilers which are very inefficient. The capital investment will reduce revenue costs."

Asked whether existing services will be maintained, Mr Sloman said: "All the services set out under the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey Clinical Strategy will form the clinical footprint for the development. We will redevelop the site in accordance with the strategy."

The Royal Free expects to submit a planning application to Enfield Council in November when further details will emerge.

The trust will receive £263million in transitional funding over the next five years and has said that it will invest £100m in the Chase Farm site to modernise facilities – funded partly by the sale of land there.

Andrew Panniker, director of capital and estates, said that the trust aimed to keep Chase Farm's Highlands Wing and the multi-storey car park. Other than that, he admitted, it would be a "complete facelift".

Mr Sloman added: "There will be a proper consultation with stakeholders, staff and neighbours living near the hospital, in accordance with planning rules."

"And we will be sitting down with clinicians and nurses to see what is the best possible way of organising all this."

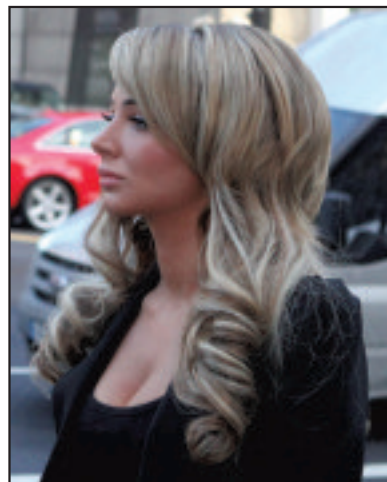

The full business case for Chase Farm's redevelopment will not be published until early in the summer next year.

The trust is planning to start initial works next spring and the main building work in the summer of 2016. It expects the works to be completed by spring 2017.

Rapper's drugs case thrown out following collapse of Tulisa trial

THE trial of an Enfield man who admitted supplying class A drugs to undercover journalist Mazher Mahmood has collapsed after the judge threw out the case against his co-accused, singer Tulisa Contostavlos.

The case against rapper Michael Coombs, 35, of Velocity Way, Enfield Lock, was dismissed by judge Alistair McCreath on Monday morning after he decided there was reason to believe the main prosecution witness had lied at an earlier hearing.

The trial of 26-year-old Miss Contostavlos, Friern Barnet, got under way on Wednesday last week, two days after Mr Coombs had pleaded guilty, and after the singer's legal team submitted several applications to have the case scrapped.

Southwark Crown Court had heard evidence from Mr Mahmood, who carried out a sting for The Sun on Sunday in May last year. Jurors were told that the singer "swallowed completely" the story that Mr Mahmood was a film producer who wanted her to star in his next movie and she arranged to have drugs supplied as part of a "boys' night out" in London.

But on Monday afternoon the former X Factor judge told journalists outside the court that she felt "justice had been done" after the case, which she described as a "horrific and disgusting entrapment", was thrown out.

She said: "I have never dealt or been involved in taking or dealing cocaine. This whole case was a horrific and disgusting entrapment by Mazher Mahmood and The Sun on Sunday newspaper."

"Mahmood has been exposed by my lawyers openly lying to the judge and jury."

"I told his long-standing driver that I am against drugs – this is the truth and it is clear that the driver was pressurised to change his statement."

"Thankfully, these lies have been uncovered and justice has been done."

The former N-Dubz star said she was targeted "at a time when things were going badly for me".

She added: "I urge both the police to investigate Mazher Mahmood and his team and to put an end to his pursuit of sensational stories for commercial gain."

Mr Mahmood has been suspended from the newspaper pending an internal investigation.

Concerns as fourth pound store opens

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

WITH four bargain basement stores soon to be open for business in the same shopping mall in the east of the borough, a council finance chief has said it proves that despite government claims of economic recovery, families are still living in poverty.

British chain store Poundworld will open its doors in Edmonton Green Shopping Centre tomorrow morning, offering direct rivalry to the 99p Store, Poundland and Sam 99p.

Admitting it is not ideal to have so many discount retailers packed into an area that council bosses have earmarked for regeneration, the local authority's cabinet member for finance and Edmonton Green ward councillor Andrew Stafford said it was proof that economic hardships continue to be felt east of the A10.

"In Edmonton, 61 per cent of children live below the poverty line and 60 per cent of pensioners live in poverty," he told the Advertiser.

"In real terms, people are worse off now than they were in 2010."

But Mr Stafford said that the arrival of another discount retailer in the mall is better than "rows of empty shops - that gives out the worst impression possible".

Tahsin Ibrahim, Enfield Business and Retailers' Association town centre manager for Edmonton Green, admitted that shops such as Poundworld and Poundland did not bring "extra attraction" to Edmonton - an area to which business bosses and council chiefs are desperately trying to draw investment.

"We want our town centres to be thriving and another low price retail unit is not going to bring extra attraction to the town centres," he said.

"It is true, we'd like to see some household names and larger companies in the high street."

But Mr Ibrahim added that anything which provided any employment for the people of Edmonton should be welcomed.

A Poundworld spokeswoman insisted that opening a discount shop in such close proximity to others was not a cynical means of exploiting low-income families.

She stressed that the shop is "dedicated to helping local shoppers lower the cost of their weekly shop" and "we offer consistent value every day", adding: "For many, without such shops, the cost of living would be a lot higher."

She also said that the main reason for the steady rise of discount shops across the country could be attributed to the fact that "people love a bargain" as shoppers were becoming "more and more savvy to prices".

Mental health centre to close after cash runs out

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A CRUSADING campaigner has pledged to do all in his power to keep open a centre that serves as a refuge for hundreds of vulnerable people every week.

The Hanlon Centre, in Dysons Road, Upper Edmonton, was opened in 1986 as a refuge for people who suffer from mental health problems.

It has supported refugees, young people and asylum seekers during the past three decades.

However, it has now emerged that the centre will close with immediate effect due to a lack of funding.

Bharat Patel, a volunteer handyman for the centre, says he refuses to let that happen.

"The Hanlon Centre is like a home to me," he told the Advertiser.

"I first came here five years ago when I was suffering from depression. I would just come and sit in the corner and not talk to anyone, I was just completely in my own world. But then slowly, bit by bit, I started coming out of my shell."

Now, Mr Patel is calling on the centre's trustees to undertake a massive fundraising drive to keep it open.

"There are three paid members of staff and they will lose their jobs," said the campaigner.

"Every day, about 50 people come through the door – each week about 400 people use this centre. What are all these people going to do if the centre closes?"

Chairman of the committee of trustees Father Nigel Asbridge, who is the parish priest of St John the Evangelist church, which adjoins the centre, is adamant that with an outstanding debt of £20,000 and annual running costs of £100,000 there is simply no way that the centre can stay open.

"We are going to use our reserves to pay off some of the debts and we are going to have to fully stop all outgoings," said Mr Asbridge.

"No one wants to give funding to a centre that is in debt and it is getting harder and harder to raise money through people like the National Lottery.

"On top of that, the cuts to mental health services have hit us hard."

But with 150 names so far on his petition, Mr Bharat is determined to stop the centre vanishing from the lives of people who need it the most.

He added: "As one of the centre's users told me, 'This place will close over my dead body'."

Petition: Bharat Patel won't let the centre close

Report recommends taking arms-length management organisation under wings of local authority

Opposing political camps: Ahmet Oykener and Edward Smith

Bringing management of council homes back in-house would save more than £500k a year

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE management of council homes is set to come back under the wings of the local authority, six years after it was taken over by an arms-length management organisation.

Enfield Homes, which was set up by Enfield Council in April 2008 to manage its homes and to improve housing services, will be brought back in-house in April next year under proposals to go before the council's cabinet tonight.

The organisation, which is responsible for the management of more than 11,000 rented council homes and around 4,500 leasehold properties, was set up to deliver the previous Labour government's Decent Homes programme.

That was aimed at bringing homes up to a minimum standard of being warm and weatherproof and having reasonably modern facilities.

But following a review in 2012, and with funds for the programme ending this financial year, a cabinet report by Ray James, director of health, housing and adult social care, recommends reintegrating the body back into the council.

The move will save the authority more than £500,000 a year, according to the report.

Ahead of tonight's meeting Ahmet Oykener, cabinet member for housing, told the Advertiser: "After a review in 2012 we actually extended the contract with Enfield Homes until March 2015.

"Cabinet will have a new report in front of it and I will ask the cabinet if they will approve it.

"With the end of the Decent Homes programme, its lifeline is ending and it will cost the council an additional £500,000 more if things remain as they are, so there are savings to be made."

Following a consultation in 2012 tenants voted in favour of Enfield Homes remaining under arms-length control.

However, leaseholders voted for the organisation to be brought back in-house and the council decided then to set the wheels of reintegration in motion.

Edward Smith, Conservative spokesman for housing, said: "Tenants previously voted in favour of it remaining an Almo, which the council ignored.

"On the other hand there will be savings and the council is trying to restructure the housing department, so that there is more tenant involvement, and we are all trying to make the new governance structure as responsive as possible."

Renewed appeal over 2010 death

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

DETECTIVES last night launched a fresh appeal into the unexplained death of a man in Palmers Green four years ago.

The badly burned body of 53-year-old Kester David was discovered on July 7, 2010, underneath the Broomfield Lane railway arch just behind a building belonging to Travis Perkins.

A post-mortem revealed that he had died from burns and inhalation of fumes.

In the years since the part-time bus driver's death, the police have come under fire for botching the original investigation which concluded that he had taken his own life.

A report about the investigation found that the two Enfield officers who led the inquiry "failed in their duty" after they did not inspect crucial CCTV footage or analyse mobile phone data.

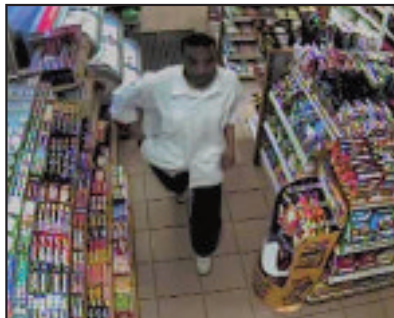

These two areas of the investigation are now the focus of the renewed police appeal, which was featured on BBC TV's Crimewatch programme last night and detectives are keen to trace a mobile phone belonging to the dead man.

Mr David, from Wood Green, was seen on CCTV the night before his body was found just after 9pm entering the Texaco service station in Lordship Lane, Wood Green.

He bought petrol in a jerry can, returned 20 minutes later in his white Ford Transit van and put the fuel into it.

About four hours later, at 3.23am, a black man is seen entering the forecourt of the same petrol station. He also bought a jerry can of petrol.

At 3.55am, a man wearing the same clothing as

Found dead four years ago: Kester David captured on CCTV the night before the man featured at 3.23am is seen on CCTV walking north along Green Lanes, towards Broomfield Lane.

Mr David's family have viewed the CCTV and say that this man is categorically not Kester.

His mother, who is now 80, said: "When the detectives informed me that the burnt body of a bus driver had been found, the one thing I hoped in my heart was that he was already dead when he was set alight."

"No mother should have to bury their child under such horrifying circumstances. I appeal to anyone out there who may have heard his cry for help or seen anything unusual on the night of July 6-7, 2010, to come forward however small the information."

"I am sure a third party was involved and they must be stopped from doing this again."

Columnist

Doug
Taylor

Enfield Council leader

RECEIVED last week a copy of Conservative-run Bexley Council's magazine.

Bexley is a borough in south-east London – and a smaller one than Enfield.

In the magazine was a page on the financial cuts it will have to make as a result of government cuts to its funding – £40million in this case.

Barnet reports a need to save £70m over the next five years. Enfield, in the next three years, will need to find £60m as a result of government cuts and increased cost pressures.

This is something that will be paralleled throughout the capital – we all have to make substantial savings.

Over the summer, Enfield will start consulting on what our priorities should be.

Our local Conservatives have a tendency to try to suggest our cuts are unique, and all because of local poor management.

In fact, Enfield has been very successful and has already made £75m of cuts while still protecting services.

However, we are in the same boat as others – more and more cuts, centrally determined, but hitting us locally.

The local Conservatives support their government cuts.

It is therefore astonishingly hypocritical that the same people are now complaining about the financial problems which local councils face. And they seem to be oblivious to the fact that it is a universal problem.

We will do all that we can to protect services – but don't let anyone kid you who is to blame.

It is central government that is wielding the axe, and not down to poor local management.

Fruits have a deeper meaning

MONTY Meth, in his regular column last week, highlights the takeover of Barnet and Chase Farm hospitals by the Royal Free.

He opens with the searching words, "by their deeds shall we know them".

The life president of Enfield Over 50s Forum castigated government claims about "seeing" patients within 30 minutes of them attending an A&E department. Instead, he quite rightly pointed out it may well be more than four hours before people are treated.

However, I must confess that I was seen very quickly when I attended the accident and emergency unit at North Middlesex Hospital.

Surely we must hope this takeover will be accompanied by "deeds".

Rather than the excellent opening statement, "by their deeds shall we know them", I would have preferred, "by their fruits shall we know them".

This was one of two alternatives suggested by Mr Meth, along with "works", and is a Bible phrase which might well have a deeper meaning.

A very short-sighted approach

HOW can Enfield Council act as if fly-tipping does not happen in the borough?

The strike by [public sector] employees on Thursday, July 10, left many people with uncollected refuse and recycling.

When asked when it would all be collected, the answer was "the following Thursday".

And would the collectors be picking up any additional bags of recycling or refuse? "No".

What should we as residents be expected to do? "Take it to Barrowell Green recycling centre".

I was told this was the only option available at the time, but I have to ask why the council is so short-sighted or blinkered?

A situation like this will cause additional fly-tipping, which even the council admits costs more than waste collections.

Why, therefore, did it not treat the Thursday as a bank holiday, cycle the collections as over Christmas, Easter etc and at least give us some consideration as it was not our fault that the collections was not made?

Face the facts: cyclists spend less than drivers

DAVID Hughes dismisses Helen Osman's concerns about the negative impact of removal of on-street parking on retail in Palmers Green (Letters, Advertiser, July 17).

Instead, he repeats the claim that "cyclists, and in particular pedestrians, are far more important to the retail economy because they are more numerous and spend more per person than drivers".

You know what they say about lies, damned lies and statistics? So, let's nail this particular canard once and for all.

The evidence comes from research conducted in Melbourne, Australia, that found that the space used to park one car can accommodate six bicycles.

The research did not find that cyclists spend more than car drivers – cyclists spent $47 per hour compared to $65 spent by motorists. In principle, yes, six cyclists spend more than one motorist.

But contrary to Mr Hughes' assertion, the author of the report concludes that the financial benefits of replacing car with bike parking only makes sense where people cycle – if car parking is replaced with bike parking which is then unoccupied, this will reduce the

Two wheels or four?
Our correspondent gives her opinion amount of expenditure derived from that public space.

The report therefore points to the need to determine how many car parking spaces should be removed and replaced with bike parking.

And it suggests – contrary to what the Enfield cycling lobby is intent on pushing through – that Melbourne replaces "two car spaces to begin with and see if demand then justifies more."

The report can be found online at http://colabradio.mit.edu/changing-car-

parking-to-bike-parking-in-melbourne/. So, before criticising a lack of evidence, make sure you understand the facts.

And if you want evidence from a real-life experiment that took place in Enfield, recall the council's actions to support retail following the riots. It made parking free on three Saturdays in December 2011. I don't seem to recall anyone arguing then that removal of parking would be a better solution.

'Savage cuts' are nothing of the sort

MORE selective amnesia from a Labour councillor, Achilles Georgiou, referring to "savage cuts" (Letters, Advertiser, July 16).

In fact, all that has really happened is that annual government spending increases in most departments are below inflation in order to try and reduce the debt mountain that [former prime minister] Gordon Brown left both us and our great grandchildren to pay back.

He also forgets that under Mr Brown's government, the number of civil servants, increased by more than 600,000 – many at inflated salaries.

If one examines the council officers' remuneration at Enfield, there are more than 50 earning more than our three MPs, with seven earning more than £100,000.

Can this really be ethical and right? I would suggest the first step to save money would be that no local authority officer should earn more than an MP's basic salary.

The second step would be to cut the number of councillors in each ward from three to two.

Drugs suspects arrested after search of cars

THREE people were arrested for suspected drugs offences during routine police patrols in the borough on Friday evening.

Officers who spotted two cars parked in Pycroft Way, Edmonton, believed that a man and a woman in a Ford Focus and a man in a Volkswagen Passat were acting suspiciously and searched them and the cars.

They discovered that the man in the Passat had a quantity of cocaine hidden in his sock, while 38 wraps of what is believed to be a class A drug were found in the side of the front passenger seat of the Ford Focus.

A 36-year-old man and a 28-year-old woman were arrested on suspicion of possession with intent to supply class A drugs, while a 51-year-old man was arrested on suspicion of possessing class A drugs. All three have been bailed pending further inquiries.

Teenager suffers chest injuries

A TEENAGE moped rider was taken to hospital after a collision in Bowes Road on Sunday.

The 19-year-old suffered chest injuries following the collision with a car near the junction with Palmerston Road just after 2pm.

The air ambulance landed on the eastbound carriageway to collect the injured teenager.

He was airlifted to the Royal London Hospital, in Whitechapel, east London, where his condition was described as serious but not life-threatening.

Colliding lorries spark M25 chaos

COMMUTERS faced rush-hour chaos on the M25 yesterday morning after a collision between two lorries tore up the surface of the motorway.

According to the Highways Agency, the two lorries collided between junctions 25 and 26 at about 5.10am.

No one was injured, but two lanes of the anti-clockwise carriageway were closed until 9.30am when one was reopened.

The other lane was closed until resurfacing work had taken place.

At the height of the delays, traffic was queueing back to junction 28.

In full flow: Rohini Simbodyal with pupils at Wilbury Primary School on Monday

Youngsters join in a burst of activity

CHILDREN are being encouraged to take part in ten-minute bursts of activity in a bid to get fit.

Enfield Council has been supporting school pupils to join in the Change 4 Life 10 Minute Shake Up campaign, which includes Disney-themed games and dance moves.

On Monday, youngsters at Wilbury Primary School, in Wilbury Way, Edmonton, took part a demonstration session.

Rohini Simbodyal, cabinet member for sport, youth and public health, said: "All schools have received information packs explaining how the games work and children can look them up on the website. The aim is to get children in Enfield and across the country moving for an extra 100 million minutes this summer.

"Moderate to vigorous activity performed several times a day is sufficient to improve fitness and health overall. This is a great way to engage children in activities which are fun and healthy."

Parents who sign up to the campaign receive a free pack containing ideas and tools to help them on their way to achieving 60 minutes of activity a day.

Packs also include a stopwatch for timing ten minutes of activity, a wall chart and stickers as well as Disney character activity cards.

Wilbury headteacher Kate Turnpenney added: "We are very keen to help promote strong health messages that will give our children a good start in life.

"By making learning fun, children can enjoy these exercises and develop a habit for regular activity throughout their lives. We encourage children and their families to continue doing these activities during the school holidays."

ADVERTISEMENT FEATURE

Stop yo-yo dieting by changing how you think about food

Following the recent recommendations from NICE, that highlighted weight loss is more effective when our behaviour towards food is changed, Lesley Turner from Hertfordshire shares her top tips, gained from having trained as a LighterLife Counsellor / Centre Manager last year.

Lesley decided to join LighterLife to lose weight because she could not run up the stairs without gasping for breath and became really concerned about her health and now runs 7 of sessions every week, helping 100s of Enfield locals lose weight and reshape their future.

She now shares the 'Secret Seven' breakthroughs that will help you end the cycle of yo-yo dieting.

1) "Pay attention to what you are eating"

We can all relate to snacking / eating more when we are bored / stressed / sad or happy. Think about it; do you sometimes find yourself picking at your desk, shocked when you have seen that you have eaten a whole bag of sweets? Start focussing on whether you are actually feeding a physical hunger or whether you are using food as comfort. It's also worth keeping a diary and seeing if you have any patterns of behaviour, such as 'treating' yourself when you get home from work. If so, it is time to start to know these trigger points and break these habits.

2) "Don't use food as a treat or reward"

As a child we can all probably remember being given some kind of food as a reward for being good or for eating our meals well. Perhaps you were also given chocolate / sweets as a treat on the way home from school? These are not good habits to have and you need to try and find a way to treat yourself, that doesn't involve food. A luxurious bath / trip to cinema with friends for example.

3) "Understand what discomfort food is"

Being overweight can often make us feel unhappy and self-conscious about our appearance. If we don't address these types of feelings, we'll often reach for our chosen 'comfort food' (or as we should call it, discomfort food). Learn strategies that teach you to focus on what you are happy about with yourself instead.

4) "Distract, don't snack"

Do anything – something different! Take some exercise, have a glass of water, read a magazine, watch your favourite film or phone a friend. All will start to become second nature and take your attention away from eating.

5) "Satisfaction Guaranteed?"

Next time you find yourself reaching for that unwanted snack stop and think about it. If you eat it, will it really satisfy you or will it leave you feeling guilty? Try to focus on your weight loss goals to keep you on track – as good as that chocolate bar or packet of crisps might make you feel initially, think of the long term feelings of achievement you will feel after succeeding in your weight loss goal.

6) "Size Matters!"

I see many clients who put on weight at the lovely, warm and fuzzy start of a relationship. This is often due to women, in particular, relaxing in regard to what they eat and also matching portion sizes with their new partners. Think carefully about portion sizes and whether you really need the all of the food that is put in front of you.

7) "Stop eating when you are full"

It sounds simple, I know! As a child we're often asked to eat everything on our plates, as you grow up – you need to realise, you're now an adult and you can make that call yourself. Learn what 'being full' really means and recognise those feelings.

Split: Residents have strong opinions over the proposed controlled parking zone

Divided over CPZ

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A SECOND consultation will be carried out over hotly contested proposals for a controlled parking zone in a Southgate street, leaving residents divided.

Parking surveyors are carrying out a new survey in Chelmsford Road and Enfield Council has confirmed it is likely to consult on an extension of the existing CPZ in the area in September.

That is less than a year after the authority abandoned plans to impose parking restrictions in some parts of the street.

The news was welcomed by residents living in the western end of the road, which leads to busy Chase Side, close to the main Southgate shopping area, and where they say the situation is "worse than ever" due to commuters being able to park their cars unrestricted all day and parents dropping off their children at a nearby school and nursery.

Leslie McClymont, 65, who lives at the western end of the road, said: "They have already done a consultation and found that most at our end were in favour of the scheme, so why do they have to consult again? Why can't we move ahead to the stage where we discuss the terms of the CPZ? It seems like a waste of money. The situation is worse than ever and something needs to be done."

The last consultation cost the council £48,300.

Residents at the eastern end said they were worried by the sight of parking surveyors, having successfully fought off the CPZ proposals last year.

Mike Webster, who led an action group against the plans, said the regulations were unnecessary and that even introducing a CPZ in one part of the street would have an impact on the rest of the area.

He added: "We campaigned against it last year and now they are going to consult again. I cannot believe they are spending council taxpayers' money on something we do not want and do not require. It is a total waste of council funds."

Chris Bond, the council's cabinet member for environment and community safety, said: "The response to the initial consultation was pretty much 50/50 for and against and there is a new block of flats in the road, so we believe there should be a new consultation."

"I hope as many residents as possible get involved in the process. There is very strong sentiment on both sides and we will listen to what residents want."

Speed limit set to be cut at scene of fatal collision

TRAFFIC bosses in Enfield have confirmed plans to reduce the speed limit on a section of The Ridgeway where a young restaurant manager was killed in a car accident last year.

Adem Mehmet died instantly from head injuries after his car swerved into the path of a 313 bus as it came around the bend outside St John's Senior School in the early hours of August 24.

At the time his parents Hulya and Mehmet Mehmet called for a review of safety measures on The Ridgeway between Botany Bay and the M25, where a national speed limit of 60 miles per hour currently operates.

Mrs Mehmet said: "We all got together and we laid flowers there and I said we needed to say something to Enfield Council."

"We were just standing there and the cars were speeding down the road and skidding. They were screeching their tyres."

"It is a shame that it is coming from my Adem's death, but I really feel something has to be done."

After an inquest earlier this month recorded a verdict that the 22-year-old's death was the result of road traffic collision, officers from the serious collision investigation unit reviewed the section of road and recommended Enfield Council reduces the speed limit to 50mph.

A police spokeswoman said that a two-week survey found that on average drivers came round the bend at speeds of between 41 and 43mph.

However, the investigation also reviewed statistics which revealed there had been nine recorded collisions involving injuries on The

Accident victim: Adem Mehmet

Ridgeway since 2013, including one fatal accident and another serious collision on the same bend as Mr Mehmet's fatal crash.

She said: "The council is proposing, with the full support of the Metropolitan Police, to reduce the speed limit to 50mph on the existing national speed limit sections of The Ridgeway."

"This will be going to public consultation and is fully expected to be in place during this financial year."

Chris Bond, cabinet member for environment, added: "I hope people will spare a thought for those who have lost loved ones and help us make the road safer by accepting lower speed limits on this section of The Ridgeway."

What's in a name? £265.26 of change

PUPILS from the smallest school in the borough have counted up the efforts of their spare change fundraising before the end of term.

The 97 youngsters at St John's Primary School, in Theobalds Park Road, Enfield, have been collecting two pence pieces for the past couple of months. On Monday, they counted the money and used it to spell out the school's name on the playground.

The event, which was arranged by the Friends of St John's Parents' Association, saw £265.26 collected – and the money will go towards buying balance bikes for the playground.

Headteacher Susan Notley said: "Sport is really important for our school – we are trying to get children cycling at a much earlier age."

"We've had a lot of success this year – we won the borough netball tournament, came second in the borough cricket and won a swimming gala we held with two other schools. Cycling and swimming are our two big initiatives next year."

Christine Rosario, a member of the parents' association, helped to arrange the event.

She said: "I had seen a thing on television where another school had done something similar. "It's such a small school, so we have to do so

Small change:

and Alicia Dobie with some of the money

much fundraising. We want to do the best for the children and buy equipment."

Mrs Rosario, whose daughter Isabelle is in Year 1, added: "They were so excited to count up the money and see how much they had got. We are planning to make it an annual thing."

Mrs Notley, who has been headteacher of the school for seven years, said a lot of the sporting drive came from the St John's leadership team.

She said: "Children do two hours of PE a week, we have 100 per cent participation and all the leadership team run a club like tag rugby and rounders – we have about eight."

"We enter all the competitive sporting competitions. It has improved their level of fitness."

Advice: Nick Johnson, Kelly Mavrides and Paul McNulty face jobseekers

Careers clinic is just the job

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

JOBSEEKERS flocked to the first in a series of career clinics organised by a not-for-profit training group last week.

About 20 jobhunters listened to the store manager and personnel manager of the Ponders End branch of Tesco talk about working for the international company in a conference room at Enfield Business Centre, in Hertford Road, Enfield Highway, on Friday.

The session, hosted by Enterprise Enfield, allowed jobseekers to quiz the representatives about a number of issues.

Employment figures have been recorded as rising nationally, but the mood of those present reflected the frustrations faced by the long-term unemployed.

When one asked why the majority of jobs advertised were for part-time positions, store manager Paul McNulty insisted: "We cannot dictate our hours, the customers do that".

Despite Mr McNulty and HR manager Kelly Mavrides being limited in how much advice they could give jobseekers – beyond telling them to sign up to the Tesco careers website for alerts – at least one went away from the event spurred on to seek work at the company.

Trained environmental and civil engineer Cornelia Silaghi, 35, said: "I know they have bought a lot of land in order to build more stores and I think with my qualifications I could help them with projects like that. "Listening to the two managers speak today, I feel that Tesco could be a great company to work for – they seem to support their staff really well."

Nick Johnson, business engagement officer at Enterprise Enfield, chaired the clinic and told the Advertiser that the presentation was just the first step in a new strategy of getting major employers to provide targeted advice to jobseekers.

He said this was a way of giving the borough's unemployed a unique "way in" to working with some of the nation's biggest companies.

"Today was the first step. It is fantastic that they could give us an insight like this – and in the future with our series of career clinics we will be building on this knowledge with targeted workshops to help jobseekers secure work at these large employers," added Mr Johnson.

Order in the House as student Maya meets Mr Speaker

A TEENAGER quizzed the Speaker of the House of Commons about his political journey during a memorable trip to Parliament last week.

Maya Caddle, a member of the UK Youth Parliament in Enfield, headed to Westminster last Wednesday to meet John Bercow and observe the first Prime Minister's Questions following the cabinet reshuffle.

Maya's school, North London Collegiate, in Edgware, north-west London, arranged the trip for the 17-year-old, who is studying for A-levels in politics, economics, history and maths. The two discussed their motivation and how they got into politics.

Afterwards, Maya said: "It was an absolute honour to meet the Speaker. He was incredibly down to earth and I found it both fascinating and interesting to find out about his background.

"Watching PMQs from the Speaker's Gallery in the Commons was definitely an experience I won't forget. It was engaging, fast-paced and incredibly loud."

Science scary? No, it's just child's play

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A SCHOOLGIRL is starring in a film aimed at encouraging parents to carry out science experiments at home to rouse their children's enthusiasm in the workings of the natural world.

Six-year-old Mischa Lapuz, of Grove Gardens, Enfield Wash, and her parents Mei and Jason feature in Giant Bubbles, a short film showing how to carry out a science experiment involving giant bubbles, using only household objects to learn about pressure and forces.

The film was commissioned by the Royal Institution of Great Britain as part of ExpeRimental: Bringing Science Home, a series of ten films aimed at encouraging parents to carry out exciting yet simple science activities at home over the school holidays.

Mischa, who goes to Eastfield Primary School, in Eastfield Road, said: "I enjoyed playing with and testing how to make bubbles with different shaped and sized holes.

"I learnt that the bubbles got bigger when the hole I blew through got bigger and was really surprised that no matter what shape I used, all bubbles made a sphere shape.

"I had a great time making huge bubbles using a baking tin and then making even bigger bubbles with string, a key and two wooden spoons."

Physics teacher and film-maker Alom Shaha, who produced ExpeRimental, said the project aims to create a library of films suited to families of different cultures.

He said: "We want to eventually create a library of films that meet the needs of families from different cultures, those where English is not the first language and those who have children with varying needs and abilities."

Mischa's mother, who works as a science teacher at Camden School for Girls, added: "What I've learned as a science teacher and as a parent is that children are naturally curious and always ask lots of questions to find out about how everything works.

"Playing with bubbles was a great opportunity to get Mischa to investigate simple concepts and discovering the answers herself.

"I hope this will encourage all families to show their children different ways to explore science in a fun, cheap and easy way."

The film starring Mischa is available to view online at www.rigb.org/expeRimental

Seven more films will be released throughout the school holidays and all will be free to watch.

THE sun shone brightly for members of the Southgate Homebound and Disabled Association as they enjoyed their 40th annual garden party.

The landmark event was held at the Winchmore Hill home of the charity's president Rai Gakhar and included a visit from mayor of Enfield Ali Bakir.

Guests from the association, which provides monthly outings for more than 20 members and is in its 59th year, enjoyed sandwiches and cakes at the garden party.

This year's event was also special because Mr Gakhar opened a woodland garden in memory of his late wife and former association president Ann, who passed away in 2011.

"To be able to say, 'Welcome to the 40th consecutive annual garden party' is a wonderful achievement," said association chairman Ian Woodall. "We are hugely thankful to both Rai and Ann, without whom this event would probably not take place."

"It is also to the great credit of the number of volunteers who have been involved with the association over its long history. Providing our members with some enjoyment is the reason we're all here and continue to do what we do.

"For some of our members, our monthly evenings provide the only chance for them to leave their homes. We survive on donations from both our members and the public, but we are always looking for new people. It would be nice to think that the association could continue for another 50 years."

The monthly meetings are often held at Christ Church, in The Green, Southgate, and nights include singing, music groups, occasional talks and some activities. Membership is free and is open to anyone from the Southgate area.

The association needs more volunteers who can spare a couple of hours on a Friday night to help with transporting members to and from the monthly evenings.

To sign up as a member or volunteer, contact vice-president Des Woodall on 020 8886 9845.

Mouldy Y-fronts finally going as derelict shop is taken over

Has been caught in a time warp since founder's son closed doors in late 90s

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A SHOP that has been slowly decaying for more than a decade will soon be swept free of cobwebs and rid of its eerie silence.

The landmark George Moore Menswear shop in Myddleton Road, Bowes Park, has been left exactly as it was since the son of founder George closed the doors in the late 1990s.

However, the shop, which features a display of men's Y-fronts which are alarmingly stained with mould and suffering from sun damage, has been bought by musician Nick Holywell-Walker, who is planning to transform it into a community asset as well as a family home.

After many years of the shop attracting strange stares and causing shivers down the spines of passers-by, former Killing Joke member Nick said he was determined to put the space to good use.

"We want to turn it into something that would be lovely for the community - we were thinking about maybe a bakery or somewhere new businesses can rent out the space to turn it into a rotating pop-up shop venue," he said.

But Nick admits it is no mean feat sweeping away the remnants of the ancient menswear collection, which he says is in a severe state of decay after stagnating for so long in the window.

"We really have our work cut out," he added. "It is a very full-on building and realistically I think we have about two years' work ahead of us."

However, rather than letting that daunting prospect put him and his musician wife Haley Glennie-Smith off the project, Nick said that they were relishing the challenge of transforming the dark and dusty shop into something the street could be proud of.

But Nick said he was not quite sure what to do about the now iconic window display.

Trapped in time: New owners Nick Holywell-Walker and Haley Glennie-Smith look at the decaying display in the window of the former menswear shop in Myddleton Road

"We feel that a lot of people seem to be quite attached to the history of the window display and we do not want to just disregard people's attachment to it," he admitted.

The new owner said that although many of the clothes were quite "mouldy" and were starting to disintegrate, he was hoping the local community would come up with some ideas on how they could be preserved, or how to pay homage to the strange piece of history.

Anyone with ideas on what should be done with the ancient artefacts is asked to contribute their thoughts to the Bowes and Bounds Connected website at www.bowesandbounds.org

Festival goes back to summer theatre roots

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

ORGANISERS of an Edmonton theatre and music festival are hoping to revive the area's cultural golden days this weekend.

The Edmonton Summer Festival, known in previous years as the Spellbound Festival, will be held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Pymmes Park, in Victoria Road – where the Edmonton Summer Theatre was held during the 1970s and 1980s.

Hundreds of people are expected to descend on the three-day festival, which will boast music, theatre, community stages, a crafts area and a funfair.

The event kicks off at 3pm on Friday with a youth festival hosted by MTV presenter Shanie Ryan.

Local talent taking to the stage will include Edmonton rap act Distinct, while singers Aleisha Lee and Ellen Blane will perform alongside established Birmingham rapper Lady Leshurr.

On Saturday and Sunday, the theatre stage, organised by Edmonton-based arts consultant Lorna Graham, will feature performances from Platinum Performing Arts, who are based at the Millfield Arts Centre in Silver Street, Egyptian rapper EmpresS*1 and Enfield-based Montserrat United Masquerade.

Summer fun: The three-day festival starts on Friday in Pymmes Park

Head organiser Paul Everitt, manager at Millfield Arts Centre, said: "The reason we are doing it at Pymmes Park this year is because we really wanted to revive the history of the Edmonton Summer Theatre."

"So many people who are big stars today did their first performance there."

"Open-air theatres back in the day were quite often the venues where people had their first taste of performing in front of the public, and we are trying to bring that back. We are trying to showcase a series of arts to show people what is possible within their community."

Gospel star Lurine Cato and lovers rock legend Janet Kay, both of whom performed at the summer theatre three decades ago, will draw a big crowd to the music stage. Grime and hip-hop artist Akala, reggae star Dennis Bovell and Irish band Crossharbour are also in the line-up.

Mr Everitt added: "For centuries, Edmonton has been the cultural centre of Enfield. The amount of talent here is mind-blowing and we hope to discover some talent for the future."

Little Park, Enfield

Situated in about an acre of beautiful grounds in a pretty and secluded location in Enfield, Little Park is a substantial detached Grade II listed family house with a fascinating history, now available for sale through Savills in Barnet.

The property was acquired and retained for several generations by a family of antiques dealers who not only used it to display items for sale (indeed the late Queen Mary often visited to view items) but frequently incorporated favoured pieces into the property itself. The fireplace in the dining room, for example, incorporates three panels made up of period Delft tiles, each one depicting a different biblical story; and there is a purpose built Billiards Room.

However, the most notable aspect of Little Park is The Tudor Room. This room was once part of Enfield Palace and, during the demolition of the palace, was reconstructed in its original layout to form part of Little Park. The room features an extraordinary stone fireplace containing the Royal Arms with Lion and Dragon and the initials ER, believed to refer to Edward VI who gifted the palace to his sister Princess Elizabeth in the 16th century.

For all its historical connections, however, this is a house very much suited to life today, both in terms of location and layout.

In terms of layout, there is a substantial kitchen/family/morning room with direct access into the garden with its pool. The drawing room, dining room, billiards room and Tudor room lend themselves to more formal occasions. The bedrooms, of which there are six, can comfortably accommodate a family plus additional guests.

In terms of location, although secluded, Little Park is within an easy distance of the town centre and main line stations to central London.

Reason to be Optima-istic

By Iain Dooley

WHAT'S new? Kia's Optima has been around for a few years, and this mild refresh ensures the Korean firm's mid-size saloon stays competitive in a crowded marketplace populated by more expensive and long-established rival metal.

There's much to like about the Optima – it is a stylish car and its bold, corporate look is striking without detracting from the rest of its clean lines.

Subtle tweaks to the nose and tail hide a more comprehensive update inside and under the skin. Improvements to overall refinement have resulted in a quieter cabin, while there is more standard and optional kit available.

Kia has followed the trend for the inclusion of smarter safety technology, such as blind spot and lane departure warning kit.

And the sharp-suited Optima has nothing to fear in the company car park. Its decidedly European styling cues sit comfortably with the less adventurous looks of many rivals.

Crucially, the big Kia shares many of its exterior details with smaller cars in the family, and it is this familiarity that should help tempt buyers to trade up with confidence.

Confidence also plays a big part in the ownership experience, which is why Kia has scored highly in recent years with its generous seven-year warranty. It is an unusual yet welcome sales tactic and has done wonders for the brand's image when it was building confidence among buyers at the start of its big European sales push many years ago.

A large saloon like the Optima is designed from the outset to be accommodating and the four-door Kia doesn't disappoint. Although the focus is on front-seat occupants, there is also ample room in the back for business associates or the family. The generously-sized boot is a big plus and the cabin isn't short of useful oddment storage options, making it an ideal environment for road warriors and their clutter.

Kia has worked to ensure the Optima delivers a refined and soothing driving experience, ready to rival the products of the established European players. It has paid off largely, with the Optima coping with both motorways and poorly surfaced roads.

The sole 1.7-litre diesel engine option delivers a strong performance and remains reasonably quiet when pushed hard. Just don't expect the Optima to rival the German sports saloons for outright performance, however.

In its refreshed state, boasting more kit and visibly higher quality levels, the Optima offers budget-savvy buyers a credible alternative to the wares of the more established brands.

With its sensible economy and emissions ratings, plus that all-important seven-year warranty, the Optima makes a lot of sense for both private buyers and company car users.

So, if you are downsizing from a larger luxury car yet keen to retain your much-loved creature comforts, Kia's Optima is worth a serious look. That is equally true if you want to move up in the world but don't fancy paying big bucks for the privilege.

Either way, the Optima comes with plenty of kit, is refined and is capable enough to worry the opposition. If you are a professional driver seeking reliable transport that will also impress customers, the Optima's polished appearance and spacious cabin are major plus points.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973; and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.
2. Classified Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.
3. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:
  - (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
  - (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
  - (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.
4. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
5. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
6. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
7. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.
8. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
9. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
10. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
11. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
12. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
13. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.
  - (i) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.
  - (ii) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.
14. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.
15. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.
16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.
18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies. Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

SOLDADO HOPING TO MAKE A BIG IMPACT

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

ROBERTO SOLDADO is optimistic that he will make a significant impact at Tottenham Hotspur next season after enduring a difficult first year with the club.

The Spanish international striker arrived at Spurs from Valencia in a big money move last summer, but struggled to adapt to life in the Premier League and only managed to score six league goals – losing his place in the side to Emmanuel Adebayor during the later stages of the campaign.

But Soldado firmly believes that he can make his mark under new head coach Mauricio Pochettino, and he was on target from the spot when Tottenham launched their pre-season tour of North America by drawing 3-3 with the Seattle Sounders on Saturday.

“The goal was important for my confidence,” he said. “We all want to score, but the most important thing is the work for the team.

“It’s all about learning how the head coach wants us to play and physical preparation, and it was good to start pre-season with this game.

“I want to work hard for the team, I believe in the team and the head coach, and I think it’s positive for us to have a great season.”

Meanwhile, Pochettino has set his sights on leading Spurs to the Premier League title during his time at White Hart Lane.

The ambitious Argentinian has taken charge of the club following a successful spell at Southampton, and he feels that everything is in place for Tottenham to challenge for major honours.

“All managers want the best and want to be the best,” he said. “I knew from the first day I came here that Spurs are a big club.

“My challenge is to win the Premier League eventually. This is our goal, to win the title one day.

“Our target at the moment is to provide a team capable of creating our philosophy on the pitch. We have an unbelievable squad with some unbelievable players. We need to work to get the players ready to start the season playing with our philosophy.”

Spurs are believed to be closing in on making their first signings of the summer, with goalkeeper Michel Vorm and left-back Ben Davies both expected to join the club from Swansea.

However, Pochettino has warned that he is not expecting many new faces to join the club before the transfer window shuts at the end of August – in stark contrast to last year when seven signings were made to offset the departure of Gareth Bale.

“We have a very good and big squad,” he added. “Last summer the club made a big effort during the window and I believe in these players. We are always looking to improve, but we don’t expect big change.

“This is a different club to Southampton. Tottenham is a bigger club and we need to win, but not only win, we need to create a good philosophy. Our philosophy is exciting football, pressing attacking football. This is our target for the moment. During the season other targets will come.”

Adeoye secures a morale-boosting victory

MARGARET ADEOYE insists that she is raring to go at the Commonwealth Games after recording a morale-boosting victory in the Sainsbury’s Anniversary Games.

A member of Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club, Adeoye has turned her attentions to the 400metres from the 200m this season, but she competed in a B 100m race in a specially-built stadium on Horse Guards Parade in London over the weekend.

And she proved that she was not just there to make up the numbers by crossing the line first in 11.61seconds to take the victory – claiming the scalp of Olympic 4x100m relay gold winner medal Bianca Knight from America in the process.

Adeoye will now turn her attention back to the 400m, where she has been selected to represent England in the individual event in the Commonwealth Games – which get under way in Glasgow today – before competing for Great Britain in the 4x400m relay in next month’s European Championships in Zurich, Switzerland.

She said: “I don’t quite remember the race, I just remember working to the line as I could see it was a close one and Bianca was really working.

“I was using this for speed because the Commonwealths are coming up and I have the 400m. My coach [Linford Christie] tells me I should be confident going into it, but I am just battling with my speed.

“I am just not feeling as rapid as I used to. I wasn’t that quick to start with, but I feel even slower now. But my coach got me out there for confidence reasons and speed work. I have been really consistent this season, which is good.

“The Commonwealth Games is going to be very challenging for me – it is going to be completely different from the 200m.”

Adeoye added: “I have run quite a few 400m, but I still have not got it right. I have either gone off too slow, too fast or messed it all up.

“So I am just hoping I can get it all right because I am in good shape and I haven’t been able to get it out yet, but hopefully I can at the right time.”

Sainsbury’s is proud to support British Athletics through the summer series events and is committed to helping young people lead healthier, more active lifestyles.

Hornsey pull clear of relegation zone

HORNSEY produced a stunning bowling display to set them on the way to a six-wicket win at home to Brondesbury on Saturday which saw them pull away from the relegation zone in the top flight of the Middlesex County Cricket League.

Christopher Blake (23) was the only man to make double figures as the visitors struggled badly after being put in to bat – being dismissed for just 67 as they lost all ten wickets for the addition of 40 runs following a solid opening stand.

Michael Philipson (5-23) and Oliver Yew (4-8) did the damage with the ball as they ripped through Brondesbury’s batting.

Hornsey lost both openers cheaply in reply, but Philipson (41) continued his fine day by scoring 41 to guide them to victory at 69-4.

North Middlesex remain in the bottom two despite continuing their good run of form by picking up a winning draw at Hampstead.

Some good bowling from Ed Bird (3-51) reduced Hampstead to 53-4 batting first, but they were rescued by a fine innings of 73 from Mubasher Hassan which helped them to get up to 216-9.

Joe Hewton (46) and Joel Hughes (34) were then North Middlesex’s main contributors with the bat as they made it to 200-8 in reply – with their faster scoring rate enabling them to claim the four points for a winning draw.

Meanwhile, Highgate climbed up into third place in the Division Three table after edging to a two-wicket win at home to Barnes.

Jack Peck (5-35) and Edward Foster (3-27) shone with the ball as Barnes were restricted to 163 batting first, and Edward Binns’ 67 proved decisive as Highgate made it to 166-8 in reply.

However, there was disappointment for North London as they lost by 82 runs at Acton.

James Baker (3-45) was the pick of the bowlers as the hosts amassed 190, and North London could only make it to 108 in reply as Alex Brennan (7-29) ripped through their batting.

Hornsey visit Twickenham on Saturday, while North Middlesex host Finchley, Highgate go to Harrow Town and North London entertain MTSSC.
